President's Day Closes Renaissance for Season

It is only in the natural order of things that the President's day entertainment of the Renaissance Music circle in honor of Mrs. James L. McKee, retiring president, and Mrs. Robert L. Brown, president-elect, should be a very beautiful one.

Knowing of the splendid things accomplished by the Renaissance during the past year, and with lingering memories of the beautiful concert given by its members for charity, the victory loan, for the Centennial, and for other causes wherever music might help others, one could not expect less than excellence of the closing event of the year, which the Renaissance tenders in honor of its leaders.

Mrs. W. C. Early will be the hostess of the occasion at her handsome home, "Birdwood," Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and those who are fortunate enough to be present will hear the talented artists of which the circle is composed at their very best in the splendid program arranged by Mrs. W. C. Early, chairman.

The good fairies sometimes known as the Muses, have been kind to Mrs. Brown and Mrs. McKee, for both are especially endowed with musical and vocal talent, as well as other arts, and Memphis does not possess two more charming or more popular women.

Although the Renaissance's entertainment Wednesday will mark the conclusion of the Renaissance's activities until the fall, clubmen and its followers may expect great things of it next year, for Mrs. Brown, assisted by the artist members of the circle, has planned to spend much time during the summer mapping out a splendid system of broad and beautiful paths, by which the general public may become more closely acquainted with the Renaissance Music circle and its music.

DIES ON STAIRWAY OF INDIGNITION

Acute indigestion is given as the cause of the death of Emma Taylor, whose body was found at 7 o'clock Monday night in her apartments at Madison avenue and Lauderdale street. From indications the woman, who was alone in the apartments, had been dead since early Monday. Her body was found fully dressed on the stairs, a few feet from the front door by her sister, Myrtle Taylor, who had gone to see why Emma had not answered her telephone calls during the day.

Emma Taylor, in company with a woman friend and a child, was out in an automobile until after midnight Sunday. Her companion waited in the car until she had herself out of the door of her apartments on bidding their good night. Considerable food and drinks were found in the car.

The theory of the police is that Emma Taylor was stricken with acute indigestion, completely exhausted, and the door was fastened from the inside and had to be forced open.

Worried, Aaron Cohen, the undertaking parlors of J. J. Collins, from where the funeral will be held Wednesday.

ELECTION COMMISSION BARRED FROM SAFE

Gray, former chairman of the commission, had the combination of the safe changed and put on a slip. He lost the slip and does not remember the combination, so the commission is temporarily barred from the contents.

ATLAS BURDEN IS ALMOST EQUALED

A peculiar charge is that against O. S. Malden, real estate salesman, the indictment reading that Malden did steal and carry away a certain tract of land (80 acres), in Union county, Miss., valued at $1,200 by trick, scheme, fraud, artifice and device.

The case against Malden will be tried in second criminal court Tuesday afternoon. S. E. Murray, attorney for Malden, says he does not know exactly how to defend a client charged with stealing and taking away as much as 80 acres of land in another state.
